A Fallen Priest.

Let some of our Nashville clergy read this and tremble lest a like fate overtake them:

It has been said, with a deal of truth, that when a man makes up his mind to be a traitor he will not then shrink from any crime. A case in point.

There lives in Memphis a minister of Gospel named Edward Porter, who, until within a few months past, had charge of a congregation in the suburbs of the city, known as Chelsea. He is a graduate of Princeton College, and was generally regarded as a very good sort of man, although little of Becksnillah, perhaps, in his manner. He early espoused the rebel cause, and made the "wrongs of the South" the burden of his discourses.

A short time ago, he resolved to leave his flock without any spiritual nourishment—shrewdly divining, no doubt, that the loss of such as he gave them would be cheerfully borne—and take up arms in defense of the South. He accordingly raised a company and proceeded to Island No. 10, where he soon became so intemperate and vicious that he was relieved of his command and sent home.

On his return to Memphis, he continued to imbibe large quantities of bad liquor, and was frequently found lying in the streets and alleys in a beastly state of intoxication. His congregation suspended him from his charge, and now he is engaged in raising a company of guerrillas. For the Southern Advance.

Mr. Romeo, a New Orleans rebel, predicted in a late speech that the Federal armies would be driven out of the South in six months. Perhaps by this time Romeo knows——Southern Journal.
